CURRENT RATES*:

Please contact Sitka Kitch for more information about renting the space. *Prices and availability may change.

Please note: Food production businesses are required to obtain the appropriate permits on their own, using the Kitch satisfies DEC facility requirements, but does not waive other permit needs.

Entrepreneur & Business Use:
- $25.00/ hour for up to 4 hours
- $20.00/ hour for rentals over 4 hours
This rate is food based businesses, food product development, tasting events and pop up restaurants.

Culinary Instructor Use:
- $35.00/ hour
This rate is specifically for instructors that want to design and host specialty cooking classes. The fee is paid to the kitch, but the instructor determines class limit and cost per student.

Community Use:
- $20.00/ hour
This rate is for anyone interested in renting the kitchen to cook for themselves, their family, or even host a small dinner. However, food products may not be sold for profit.

Non-profit Use:
- $5.00/ hour
Organizations interested in using the kitch for teaching, food based events, etc.

WHAT IS SITKA KITCH?
Sitka Kitch is a community initiative that arose from the 2013 Sitka Health Summit. The over-arching goal of the project is to improve community capacity and community development through the lens of food security.

WHY A COMMUNITY KITCHEN?
We love food and we think Sitka does too! Through a shared-use commercial kitchen, Sitka Kitch is working to support a sustainable local foods culture, spark local foods entrepreneurship and empower the community to become more independent and food secure.

OUR STORY
Sitka Kitch is a community initiative that arose from the 2013 Sitka Health Summit. Sitka Kitch is a truly collaborative and partner-rich project. The Sitka Conservation Society, First Presbyterian Church, Sitka Local Foods Network, Sitka Food Co-op, UAS Fairbanks Cooperative Extension, Sustainable Southeast Partnership and countless volunteers have all contributed to turn Sitka’s dream of a community kitchen into reality.

Sitka Kitch provides a turn-key kitchen rental facility to entrepreneurs, culinary professionals and community members. The Kitch will be maintained to DEC certification standards for commercial kitchens in the State of Alaska. Sitka Kitch serves people interested in food production and tourism, small business owners and start-ups that require a commercial kitchen to successfully run their business, and instructors that want to teach culinary classes. We are seeking to serve Sitka by offering nutrition and cooking courses to improve the health and food security of the community.
